

What do a whale's tail and the tip of an iceberg have in common?
It's what's below that matters!

“What’s out there in the Gulf of Maine?”

BOB DUCHESNE is ready to help you discover new and perhaps unusual secrets about what lurks beneath those dark blue waves. According to Bob, “The Gulf of Maine is like an oceanic Serengeti, if you know where to look.” Thanks to his many boat trips around the Gulf of Maine, Bob says that What’s Out There reveals more than what can be seen from the beach!

Bob’s background is as diverse as his presentations. He had a 31-year radio program, developed the Maine Birding Trail, wrote a guidebook to the state, and served six terms in the Maine House of Representatives. Today he serves on the Maine Board of Environmental Protection and writes a weekly column for the Bangor Daily News.
